Birdathon 2011

Thank you to all who contributed to ASGD's 2011 Birdathon! We had eight groups hitting the trails throughout the Denver metro region and beyond, while one team counted birds at feeders in their backyard. Participants had a choice to do a Birdathon "sprint" or a "marathon", as long as they were raising money to support ASGD programs one day in May. One new record this year: the fourth and fifth grade students from Ricks Center for Gifted Children at DU raised over $1700. All the teams raised over $10,000. Everyone had a great time in the field searching for as many bird species as possible. We are already looking forward to 2012.

Fourth and fifth grade students from Ricks Center for Gifted Children at DU raised over $1700 during Birdathon 2011.

Here are the reports from the teams:

3 Vets in Search of a Bird

May 13-14

Team Members: Mackenzie Goldthwait, Doug Kibbe, Jeff Dawson

Celebrating
42 Years of service to the Greater Denver Community

FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S DESK ~

Summer is here, and many of the ASGD staff and volunteers are thinking, "Wow, what a spring!". Those of us who work in the nature center field know that April/May is the busiest time of the year. When people ask us what we did to relax on the weekend, we often want to respond: "Weekend? What weekend?"

We certainly had many incredible accomplishments in the last few months. Our annual Spring Benefit raised over $27,000 gross. We cannot thank Harriet Stratton and the Spring Auction team enough for all their hard work and dedication in organizing the event.

The 2011 Birdathon was another record breaker, with eight teams raising over $10,000. We hope this is just the beginning of developing this enjoyable, recreational activity into a major fundraiser involving more of our members and supporters. It may be cliché, but the Birdathon is truly a FUNdraiser for everyone. Expert birders and novices all had a great time this year.

The bird banding station, open almost every day in May, had another successful season despite a little rain. We love the new entrance gate built on April 16 by ASGD Board Member Michael Kiessig and volunteers from the South Metro Denver Chamber of Commerce on the B.I.G. Day. Next year's project: a permanent, covered structure at the site. We also added Volunteer Naturalists at the station to assist with the educational experience.

As always, we had many school groups visit the banding station and participate in habitat ecology programs. New schools came out to the site this year, and we also held programs at several schools we have not worked with before. Members of the Douglas County SCFD council, one of our key supporters, visited the bird banding station.

Whew!

We aren't really stopping to rest, though. This summer, we are partnering with Thorne Ecological Institute to assist with operating their summer camp at Kassler and the Audubon Center. On July 2, at our new Hummingbird Day at the Audubon Center, we will celebrate these tiny avian wonders and unveil our new hummingbird garden supported through a grant from the Littleton Garden Club. We are gearing up for our first online photo contest in November. While you're exploring this summer, take your best shots and be ready to submit them in October. There is a $1000 grand prize!

And believe it or not, we're already thinking about and planning for Spring 2012. Break? What break?

Conservation Report

by Polly Reetz, ASGD Conservation Committee Chair

The Colorado Legislature ended its 68th session on May 11, 2011, and I'm very happy to report that it was a nearly 100% successful session for Audubon. Even though we had to spend a lot of time defending existing environmental law, we were able to kill, prevent, or modify every attack on the environment, thanks to those of you who responded to alerts and contacted your legislators. Here are the highlights:

HB 1294: Revoking the ban on spring bear hunting. This bill would have eliminated the ban on hunting bears prior to September 1, which the public voted in via a 1992 initiative by a 2-1 margin. Thanks to hard work by Audubon and other groups, we assembled the votes to defeat it when it arrived on the House floor. Knowing this, Speaker McNulty kept postponing the vote, so the bill died when the legislative session ended.

Audubon lobbyist Jen Boulton commented, "Attempting to repeal a highly popular initiative...was a slap in the face to the voters." While it's unlikely that the current wildlife commission would have hurried to reinstate spring bear hunts, the commission's refusal to address hunting of sows with dependent cubs in spring was the main reason for the initiative in the first place.

HB 1223: Rolling back the makeup of the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission. In 2007 the Legislature voted to add members to the COGCC and reduce its domination by the oil and gas industry. This expanded Commission then rewrote the regulations for oil and gas development to ensure that wildlife habitat and public health receive consideration in the oil/gas permitting process. This bill would have revived the industry's majority membership, and possibly lead to revoking of the new regulations, but it fortunately died.

HB 1150: Raid on Game Cash Funds. HB 1150 directed the state treasurer to move

$5 million from the Division of Wildlife to the construction fund of the Colorado Water Conservation Board (CWCB) every year for 10 years, a total diversion of $50 million.

Audubon's philosophy is that water supply projects should be paid for by those who benefit from them, not by hunters and anglers. Removal of the $5 million from Division control would have disqualified the state from receiving about $20 million a year in federal funds until all "diverted" funds were repaid with interest. The result: a loss to the Division of $25 million a year for 10 years, plus however long it takes to fully repay the $50 million.

A tremendous outcry from sportsmen and conservationists resulted in the tabling of the bill.

HB 1083. Hydropower standard. This bill amended Section 123 of the renewable energy standard to include hydropower; Audubon was able to get language included that sets fairly strong impact-based standards for this energy source, a first.

GOCO: No bill was introduced to allow lottery proceeds to be used for purposes other than parks, trails and open space – this was a victory in itself. However, bills will probably be introduced next year to do just that, so expect to hear more on this topic.

Around the Chatfield Basin:

Sterling Ranch. On May 11 the Douglas County Commissioners voted to approve the Planned Development permit for Sterling Ranch, a proposed community of 30,000 people to be located along and south of Titan Road, between Roxborough and Chatfield State Parks. ASGD has expressed a number of concerns about SR to the Commissioners, including impacts on the parks and the poor design of the open space/wildlife habitat. We are also dubious that the developers have the water to support their plans, though they have designed an excellent water conservation program. The depressed housing market will undoubtedly play a role here too. The Commission is to ratify their vote on May 31. If developed, Sterling Ranch will be easily visible from the Audubon Center.

Chatfield Reallocation: The Draft Environmental Impact Statement is supposed to appear in late July, but negotiations between the State (Parks and Wildlife) and the water providers have slowed things down. ASGD will be organizing a tour of the park to illustrate impacts as well as meetings and printed/digital information for the public. Our goals remain: full disclosure of impacts, full mitigation, and ample time for public comment.

Snakes, Cats, and Suckers...Oh My!

Garter snakes, free-roaming domestic cats, hybridizing catostomids (a type of sucker) and, yes, birds, filled the spring program of the Lois Webster Fund on May 5. The speakers included the three 2010 grant recipients, and one project from 2011 for research on garter snakes in the Denver metro area. Inclusion of the snake study was due to the upcoming high school graduation of several of the researchers, guaranteeing that they wouldn't be around next year to present their findings.

After a brief introduction, biology teacher Eric Gangloff and his students from PS 1 showed us their slides and resulting data from the radio-tagging and relocation of garter snakes in 4 locations around Denver. Re-development and habitat alteration face these fairly common snakes – so the research is being conducted while they are still common. CSU student Ashley Gramza presented her research on free-roaming domestic cats; her study also will examine cat owners' knowledge of their pets' impacts on wildlife. LWF funds helped Se Jin Song from CU to research the hybridization of two native suckers with an introduced non-native sucker on the western slope and document the resultant genetic changes. LWF funds also aided CU grad student Mysti Martin to compile 50 years-worth of handwritten bird-banding data from a riparian open space area in Boulder County, where cows were excluded after the first 20 years.

Common garter snake

All LWF grant recipients are required to write an article for the Warbler, so you will be hearing more about these projects. Audubon members who attended the LWF reception also nibbled on the tasty treats provided by the LWF Committee, an added bonus! Our thanks go to Chairman Margot Wynkoop, who organized this annual event.

Beginning Bird-Watching Class

Classroom Session at the Audubon Center: Thursday Sept. 22, 7-9 p.m.

Field Trips: Saturdays Sept. 24, Oct. 1, 8, 15, 22, and 29,, 8 a.m.-2 p.m.

Field trips to bird-watching sites around Denver: Chatfield, Barr Lake, and Castlewood Canyon State Parks, Wheat Ridge Greenbelt, and Genesee Mountain. Voted "Best of Denver!" 20 years ago and still going strong. Colorado's premier (and most entertaining) birding couple teach the art and science of birding as no one else can. Learn bird identification, choosing binoculars and field guides, and more. Visit different habitats in the best birding spots around the Denver metro area. Develop a practiced eye and ear. You can make up any field trips that you miss during future fall or spring class sessions.

Leaders: Mike Henwood* and Urling Kingery

Mike Henwood, teacher and birdwatcher, Audubon Master Birder mentor and instructor, and field trip leader extraordinaire, will substitute for Hugh Kingery, who will be getting a new hip in the Fall.

Snakes on the Plains

Saturday, July 2 from 9-10:30 a.m.

This family-friendly workshop offers participants an introduction to some of the amazing snakes that inhabit the plains and Front Range of Colorado, with a special focus on garter snakes. Led by Eric Gangloff, a local researcher and educator, the workshop includes a demonstration of field techniques in studying snakes and radio telemetry tracking. Participants will learn how to identify common species, better understand their roles in native ecosystems, and gain an appreciation for some of their incredible survival strategies. Finally, the group will take a guided walk to see these wondrous creatures in their native habitat.

Leader: Eric Gangloff, 2011 Lois Webster Fund Grant Recipient

Registration required: Free/Friends member; $5/non-member

Hummingbird Day

Saturday, July 2 from 9am-1p.m.

Celebrate our smallest, most acrobatic avian wildlife: hummingbirds! (Made possible by a generous grant from the Littleton Garden Club). There will be crafts and hummingbird-watching for all ages!

Meeting Place: Audubon Center

Registration NOT required: No Fee for the event: class and craft fees may apply

Backyard Hummingbirds of Colorado

Saturday, July 2, 11 a.m.-12 p.m.

Tom Bush covers Colorado hummingbird behaviors including breeding and nesting, diet and feeding, and migration patterns. Learn how to attract hummingbirds to your yard using feeders and native plants. Tour the Audubon Center's new hummingbird garden and see feeder samples from Front Range Birding Company.

Leader: Tom Bush of Front Range Birding Company

Registration not required: No fee

Bird Walk and Book Signing with Author Mike Foster

Saturday, July 2 at 8 a.m.

Field trip and book signing with local author Mike Foster, whose most recent book The Ties That Bind: Birds, Nature and Us, uses his personal experiences with birds to highlight problems that threaten birds and the environment. He also suggests how you can make a difference for our avian friends. After looking for birds in various habitats around the Audubon Center, enjoy lunch in the Amphitheater where Mike will read brief excerpts from his book and offer signed copies for $12. BBFGWS & Lunch Meeting Place: Audubon Center at Chatfield parking lot
Registration required: No fee

Explore Evergreen – Evergreen Lake/Dam Garden, Evergreen Audubon Nature Center and Bear Creek

Saturday, July 9, 7 –11 a.m.

We'll explore park habitats, searching for American Dipper, Common Snipe, Yellow-headed Blackbirds, Sora, ducks, warblers, hummingbirds, swallows, nuthatches, bluebirds, herons, cormorants, goldfinches and raptors. Elk, mule deer, beaver and muskrat are seen frequently. Look for birds at the Dam Garden and enjoy exhibits at the Nature Center.

Thank You friends for the Success of the Spring Benefit

Our Spring Fling held on Saturday, April 16, 2011 was a great success. The annual gathering of ASGD Friends and supporters raised $22,000. With a catered dinner buffet as the centerpiece, guests circled and bid on 232 unique silent auction offerings. After dinner, the live auction and a special appeal for ASGD educational programs raised $10,000 in 25 minutes! Everyone enjoyed the pleasure of congregating with fellow conservationists and bird lovers. Making and renewing connections over dessert topped a lovely night.

The good things happening at the Audubon Center and throughout Denver and beyond are due to our very good Friends who donate their goods and services to our cause.

Backyard Birds

by Hugh Kingery

ELIZABETH ERICKSON CALLED

AUDUBON to report a Wild Turkey walking down the sidewalk on University Blvd. between Cherry Creek & DU Apr. 22. Apr. 23, Monna Krebs emailed from Wheat Ridge that "the turkey I saw last year returned. I have one picture with a squirrel on its hind legs looking right into the eyes of the turkey, wondering what kind of bird is this?"

LOTS OF BACKYARDERS ENJOYED A

COLOR-FEST this spring. On May 9, Cindy Valentine, in Surrey Ridge, listed Virginia's Warbler (rufous crown showing), Audubon's Warbler, Ruby-crowned Kinglet, Evening Grosbeak, Western Tanager, Western and Mountain Bluebirds, and a Say's Phoebe. On May 15, Gina Gerken, Castle Pines, listed 3 Western Tanagers, one Black-headed and 6 Evening Grosbeaks. On May 13, in Franktown we counted 6 Black-headed Grosbeaks, 2 Western Tanagers, 1 Bullock's Oriole, 2 Lazuli Buntings, 6 American Goldfinches, one Green-tailed and several Spotted Towhees, and House Finches.

CAROLINE HANCOCK SPOTTED a bright male Lazuli Bunting in Highlands Ranch on May 3. Diana Zimmerman, Castle Rock, photographed a Bullock's Oriole that "landed on our hummingbird feeder and stayed for ½ hour trying to get food, hanging upside down, at various angles determined to get food. I gave my husband another feeder which he immediately drilled larger holes for the oriole, which hasn't left."

GINA CALLS ONE TANAGER "my new pet. He's on the mealworm feeder that hangs by my study window, happily gorging and loving his luck at finding a nice place to stop over during the snow." In four days, "he went through an amazing amount of mealworms and enjoyed my peanut butter suet and bathing in my birdbath."

ON MAY 3, LOIS LEVINSON, south of Cherry Creek State Park, reported "a beautifully plumaged Green-tailed Towhee, doing his shuffle in the leaf litter. The resident Spotted Towhee seemed to view him as an intruder, and there was a bit of an altercation, after which the Green-tailed departed."

FROM COLOR-FEST TO SPARROW-FEST.

Kirk Huffstater counted six species in his Castle Rock yard May 3: Chipping, Song, Lincoln's, White-crowned, plus Gray-headed Junco & Spotted Towhee. In northwest Denver Apr. 6, Chuck Lowrie spotted an elusive Lincoln's Sparrow. Char and Tom Gottlieb, also north Denver, had their first-ever White-throated Sparrow on Apr. 25. Amy Law-Ziegler, on Green Mountain also saw several White-crowns.

IN SOUTH DENVER DICK ANDERSON

saw a "Gambel's" White-crowned Sparrow after he spent the morning at the Audubon Center banding station where they banded some. Why Gambel's? Colorado sees two forms of White-crowns: one that breeds in our mountains with the white stripe ending at the eye; on the northbound form (Gambel's), the white stripe extends to the bill.

MANY FLOCKS OF WHITE-FACED IBIS

moved through the metro area this spring. City flocks included a flock Andrea Forlina reported on Earth Day (Apr. 22) at Expo Park, Aurora. Andy Spellman saw flocks on Apr. 20 and 22 at Twenty-Mile Res. in Parker. Bill Hinckley saw a flock Apr. 29 in a flooded field near Columbine Country Club; along with them, Marbled Godwits and Willets, and even a Long-billed Curlew. A flock of 80 Sandhill Cranes flew over Colorado Blvd. & Arapahoe Road Apr. 1 (per mojogolf).

FEW OTHER MIGRANTS – no warblers except Cindy's and a Yellow-rumped in Gina's yard. Apr. 22-24 Barb Shissler hosted a Swainson's Thrush, "walking calmly under our bushes." Another first, a Spotted Towhee, tried "unsuccessfully to get seed out of our caged feeder. Unfortunately, also a first, 3 Eurasian Collared-Doves." Karen Metz in Franktown reported a possible hybrid Collared-Dove x Mourning Dove.

MARY O'CONNOR SPOTTED 2 Say's

Phoebes in the Big Dry Creek open space Apr. 30. Bruce Leigh, in Littleton, saw a White-winged Dove somewhat regularly in March and April.

GEORGIA HART SENT PICTURES of some of the 40 Turkey Vultures that perched "in trees and on telephone lines Mar. 28-29", the first in her neighborhood, she reports, in her 35 years there. A flock of 8-10 vultures circled over downtown Littleton Mar. 26 (Greg Pasquariello).

CYNTHIA MADSEN "had a new yard-bird Apr. 19: a Western Scrub-Jay. They are pretty common up on the ridge during our Hawk Watch, but this is the first down here in the suburbs." Mary and Dave Driscoll also saw one Apr. 24-25 that visited the birdbath and suet feeder, their first in several months. Fran Shepperdson in Elizabeth, May 15, "just watched my lone magpie catch a mouse that I had just thrown out of the house and then balance on a fence wire trying to eat it whole. Couldn't quite do that, so he put the head in first to keep his balance and flew off."

DICK ANDERSON'S REGULAR RED-BREASTED NUTHATCH perched, Apr. 20, motionless on an aspen log he had hollowed out and made a chickadee-size nest hole. "It remained completely oblivious to me and anything else in the immediate area. I didn't see a hawk, but something really had the little guy frozen in time and space." He saw the same behavior again and "decided the predator the little guy was freezing to avoid was me." On Apr. 25 he "was greeted by a small striped face peering out from the nest hole. I hope the nuthatches use it this spring."

CYNTHIA MADSEN (CENTENNIAL) saw "two Mountain Chickadees checking out the apple tree property that was excavated by Black-capped Chickadees and used by them for the past two years. I hope they decide to rent!"

LISA REYNOLDS (WASHINGTON PARK) heard "an owl call. Mar. 30, with a flashlight, we spotted it in a tall tree in our alley. Screech-owl size and screech-owl type call." Denver hosts Eastern Screech-Owls in neighborhoods with old, almost decadent trees (they nest in old flicker holes). In early June, walk streets and alleys at sundown and stop for scolding robins: you might discover fledgling screech-owls.

A GREAT HORNED OWL NEST in Columbine that Bill Hinckley monitored blew apart in high winds. The owlets 'migrated' to the Birds of Prey facility north of Denver to grow up. Bill wondered about putting up a platform, but Great Horneds nest in old magpie nests and the like – they don't build their own nests. Char and Tom saw two Great Horneds, Apr. 10-25, "talking to each other at dusk and seemed, at first, to act like mating behavior. But it is very late for that. I always thought that they stayed in the same place all day, but one day last week one moved five times, without provocation. Tom got a great picture of one giving him the claw."

AMY'S DAUGHTER, ALAINE, looked up during a Southwest Plaza trip Mar. 14 and "pointed out a big bird flying toward us. It was dark, with wings held flat as an ironing board. Then it turned and the head and tail flashed white in the sun. We both shouted, 'Bald Eagle!' It spiraled up over our heads, then wandered northwest toward the foothills."

ANDY EMAILED, "We were very excited by a juvenile Cooper's Hawk consuming a European Starling in our back yard Mar. 9. Not that I have irreverence for starlings, it's just that natural events involving raptors happen in our suburban neighborhood and we watched for over half an hour as this drama unfolded." Cynthia watched a juvenile Red-tailed Hawk cruise through her yard, pursued by two crows and carrying a rat. Mary mentioned that red-tails have built a nest near an old Swainson's site and that the Swainson's returned in late April – where will they go this year?"

ELLIE WALKER SENT A NOTE from Wheat Ridge about ducks. "I feed Mallards (lots) from our yard on the Coors irrigation ditch. For the past couple of years, a pair of Wood Ducks also joins them; sometimes two pairs join the party. Yesterday three pairs joined us. As I phoned Patty Echelmeyer about them, a fourth male joined in! By 5 p.m. 10 Wood Ducks were in our yard – 3 females and 7 males. Nature does such surprising things and this was my moment of elation. Today, only my regular pair."

CHAR AND TOM ALSO "had the extreme pleasure of watching Wood Ducks on our pond for two weeks. Sometimes two males and one female, but more often a pair. We have a duck nest box in a tree but they show no interest in it."

TOM PARCHMAN AND HIS STEP-SON, "a few years ago built a screech-owl nest box. We placed it 15-20 feet up in our silver maple. Nothing ever used it. Last summer a female squirrel with young moved from a nearby blue spruce. Something had happened and she brought her young and nesting material to our box. She raised the two she brought and a couple more. It was great fun to watch the young ones learning to climb. They wouldn't arise until well after the sun – 9 or 10am.

"Come February flickers began calling and drumming. One drumming spot was the top of the nest box. Then in March a male flicker began investigating the box. Soon we saw squirrel nesting-material hanging out of the entrance. It looked like the hair-like fibers from overstuffed furniture plus fuzz and cottony blobs; like the stuff from the bottom of a vacuum-cleaner bag. The next day, nothing was hanging out. Then it was. Then it wasn't. I finally saw the flicker reaching in and pulling stuff out but it was so long and fibrous he couldn't pull it clear. Occasionally a squirrel chased the flicker from the house. We finally found a big chunk of squirrel nest at the base of the tree. Then, for the last month nothing has been happening except for continued drumming, and once or twice a female looking into the box.

"Today (May 4) new developments. I saw a big wad of squirrel nest blocking the hole. Now the wad is no longer stuck in the hole, but hanging from it. Looks as if the flicker is once again trying to get rid of the unwanted materials.

"I'll let you know if anything more comes of the nest box wars."
